To Whom It May Concern:

I am honored to write this letter of recommendation for Darius Quick, who will be graduating in December with a Bachelor's degree in Computer Science, specializing in software engineering. Darius has been a valued member of my team at Johns Hopkins Care at Home since September 10, 2018, serving as an Enteral Customer Service Representative for Infusion Services. Over the past seven years, I have had the privilege of watching him grow into a highly skilled, reliable, and dedicated professional.

Darius consistently demonstrates an exceptional work ethic, an eagerness to learn, and a genuine commitment to excellence. In his current role, he not only handles complex responsibilities with precision and professionalism, but also builds strong, positive relationships with patients, colleagues, and cross-departmental partners. It is not uncommon for Darius to receive unsolicited praise from both patients and fellow staff members for his empathy, thoroughness, and ability to resolve issues efficiently.

What makes Darius stand out is his rare combination of technical aptitude, problem-solving skills, and interpersonal excellence. Even in high-pressure situations, he remains calm, focused, and solution-oriented—qualities that will translate seamlessly into a software engineering environment. His attention to detail, adaptability, and commitment to continuous improvement will make him an asset to any organization.

In addition to his professional strengths, Darius has consistently demonstrated the discipline and determination required to balance full-time work while completing his degree. This speaks volumes about his time management skills, perseverance, and dedication to achieving his goals. I have no doubt that these qualities, combined with his technical training, will allow him to excel in the field of software engineering.

In closing, I wholeheartedly recommend Darius Quick for any position in his chosen field. His integrity, professionalism, and drive for excellence will ensure he makes a meaningful contribution wherever he goes. Should you require further information, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,
